

In memory of
Bryan Michael Carey

Nine months before Justin's mother would die by her own hand, his friend Bryan Carey met the same fate. On the way home from a memorial service for Bryan, and after meeting his devastated parents and brother, Margene said, I don't see how anyone could ever commit suicide and do that to their family. I remember thinking that if she were to die before me, at least it wouldn't be by suicide, a thought that revealed my complete ignorance at the time of the potentially fatal power of mental illness.

